House Bill No. 183

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The National Internal Revenue Code provides certain tax exemptions to income-earning individuals. The wisdom of the grant of such exemption is to avoid unreasonably burdening a person who has to provide to a number of household members who are unable to support themselves just yet either because they are still presumed to be studying and therefore unable to work for self-support, and/or because the person being sustained by the income earner is physically or mentally restrained from providing for himself. The State understands that an income-earner has an obligation first and foremost to his/her family and the latter supports or assists the former by imposing lesser taxes accordingly.

However, in light of the K-12 Curriculum recently passed and implemented in the country, wherein two (2) more year levels were added to our educational system, a person affected by the said law is now expected to complete his/her education at twenty-three (23) years old on average, instead of twenty-one. As such, the income earners in the family would have to sustain the education of their children or immediate relatives (i.e. brother/sister) a little bit longer, or to be more specific, two years longer than before.

Because of this, it is only proper to amend the section/s of the National Internal Revenue Code which provide/s for the age limitation of household members that may qualify as dependents for purposes of availing tax exemptions, if only to avoid defeating the purpose and wisdom of the above-cited specific provision of the National Internal Revenue Code.

It is only for this reason that this Bill is being sought to be passed.
