EXPLANATORY NOTE

On December 25, 2013, a sting operation in a cock breeding farm in Lipa City, Batangas by members of the Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency (PDEA) and the Philippine National Police Anti-Illegal Drugs Special Operations Task Force (PNP-AIDSOTF) led to the arrest of three people connected with the Sinaloa drug cartel. The said operation found them in possession of 84 kilograms of methamphetamine hydrochloride, more commonly known as "shabu", along with two firearms. The Mexican Sinaloa drug cartel has been reputed to be the largest and most powerful drug trafficking organization in the Western Hemisphere.

How the country was penetrated by the drug cartel still remains under investigation; likewise, the possibility of the Mexicans being linked with similarly notorious Chinese drug syndicates is also being looked into. Global manufacturing of illegal drugs and its extensive trafficking network now span the Pacific, connecting Chinese chemical factories, drug cartels in Mexico, and drug users not only in the Americas but in Asia as well. Authorities involved with anti-illegal drug operations deem the infiltration of the Sinaloa drug cartel as a major leeway for the Philippines becoming a "narcotic state".

The enactment of Republic Act No. 9165, also known as the Comprehensive Dangerous Drugs Act of 2002, established the Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency as the country's lead agency in the enforcement of anti-drug law. Although the PDEA has posted a significant increase in the number of anti-illegal drug operations, the recent entry of the Sinaloa drug cartel requires the strengthening of the PDEA, as well as increasing interoperability among the different organizations concerned in order to effectively counter this menace.

This Act seeks to amend some provisions of Republic Act No. 9165 in order to push for measures such as the enhancement of the facility of anti-illegal drug units, improvement of digital communications, increase in the manpower of PDEA, and the development of a systemic, wide-scope partnership with the Department of Transportation and Communications (DOTC), the Bureau of Immigration, and the Bureau of Customs in closely monitoring inbound imports for possible illegal drugs smuggling and the entry of people involved with illegal drug operations.

Immediate passage of this Bill is earnestly sought.
