HOUSE BILL NO. 339

Introduced by Representative Xavier Jesus D. Romualdo

EXPLANATORY NOTE

This bill was originally filed by the late Representative Pedro P. Romualdo. The Bicameral Conference Committee Report on this bill was not ratified on the last session day of the 14th Congress due to a lack of quorum. It was subsequently re-filed by Representative Romualdo in the 15th Congress and was referred to the Committee on Justice. However, the Committee on Justice was unable to take up the resulting draft committee report. The same thing happened in the 16th Congress.

Last Congress, the bill was for sponsorship at the Committee on Justice before Congress adjourned.

The Explanatory Note of the late Representative Romualdo is herein reproduced and adopted as part of the explanation for the filing of this bill:

This measure is a timely piece of legislation, which will clothe the Bureau of Immigration with a renewed mandate to deliver world class immigration services that will promote the country’s image in the international community as a safe tourist destination and a potential investment site. This bill will catapult the Bureau of Immigration as a government agency that concomitantly assumes the role of a gatekeeper and that of an agent of economic development. To attain this goal, this bill seeks to strengthen the organizational structure of the Bureau of Immigration by converting it into a Commission with expanded jurisdiction and a streamlined powers and functions, thereby amending the archaic provisions of Commonwealth Act No. 613, a 1940 immigration statute.

This landmark legislation will ensure a vibrant, dynamic and more structured agency to be known as the Commission on Immigration and Naturalization that will be tasked to perform a twin function — gatekeeper and economic agent. As a gatekeeper, the new Commission shall have the power to control and regulate the immigration of aliens in the country consistent with its duty to safeguard our borders, national security, national sovereignty and public safety. As an agent of economic development, the new commission will be tasked to develop effective mechanisms and procedures on immigration and naturalization that will foster investments through a vibrant tourism industry and higher government revenue. This twin-function reflects the demands of the present time.

This bill will empower the current Bureau of Immigration to simplify further its requirements for visa applications or visa extension and expedite its processing and issuance of visas, alien certificates of registration, and other travel documents. Indeed, an orderly and simplified procedures will streamline the duties and functions of their officials and employees, improve the delivery of services by the commission, provide convenience and satisfaction to the public in general and the foreigners in particular, and more importantly, reduce if not eliminate red tape which breeds graft and corruption. Consequently, more foreigners will be enticed to visit the country for tourism or to seek investment opportunities, and those residing in the Philippines will be motivated to report regularly to the immigration office and avail of the various immigration services of the Commission.

Industry data shows that tourist arrivals in 2011 were estimated at 3.917 million with visitor receipts estimated at 129,689.33 million as reported in the Department of Tourism website. We believe these figures will double if the commission will simplify further their immigration policies and procedures without neglect of its duty as the government’s gatekeeper.

With the advent of globalization characterized by shrinking space and time and disappearing political and economic borders, the country has not been exempted from the scourge of terrorism and other transnational and/or syndicated crimes such as drug trafficking, human smuggling and trafficking in person, and kidnapping, among others, that have likewise taken their toll in the economy. Local and foreign investors alike cannot be blamed of their capital flight as they have a second look in further investing in the country taking into consideration the peace and order situation. Hence, this bill will add credence to our fight against these nefarious criminal activities by allowing the Commission to strengthen further their existing procedures and policies on border control and management. This is the essence of a gatekeeper.

It was the Second Assembly of the Philippine Commonwealth that enacted the Philippine Immigration Act of 1940 on 22 January 1940 known as Commonwealth Act No. 613. It created the Bureau of Immigration under the administrative supervision of the Office of the President. Then, it later became an attached agency of the department of justice and was later returned to the administrative control of the Office of the President.

In 1941, the bureau was once again under the Department of Justice and, in 1945, it was put under the supervision and control of the Department of Labor as part of the reorganization plan of the government. In 1948, the Bureau was again returned to the Department of Justice where it remains up to this time.

In 1972 as part of the reorganization plan, the Bureau of Immigration was named the Commission on Immigration and Deportation, a collegial body and performing both administrative and quasi-judicial functions. On July 25, 1987, President Corazon C. Aquino signed Executive Order No. 292, otherwise known as the Administrative Code of 1987. The Commission on Immigration and Deportation was renamed the Bureau of Immigration.

Seventy-two (72) years after its creation, it is only now that we are giving this agency the preferential attention it deserves considering its dual functions and significant contributions in national development. It is only fitting that we provide the proposed Commission with the renewed mandate to develop and execute sound policies and procedures that will professionalize the immigration service, foster tourism and foreign investment without sacrificing national security, national sovereignty and public safety, and enhance revenue collection for the government.
Under this bill, the proposed Commission shall be principally responsible for the administration and enforcement of immigration, alien registration, citizenship and administrative naturalization laws, and shall continue to be under the administrative supervision of the Department of Justice.

In view of the foregoing, the support of the Members of Congress for the timely passage of this measure is earnestly requested.
