EIGHTEENTH CONGRESS
First Regular Session
House Bill No. 758

Introduced by HON. ROZZANO RUFINO B. BIAZON

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The democratization of access to quality education particularly for children and youth with special needs (CSN) such as the gifted, the gifted but physically handicapped, the fast learners, the mentally retarded, the visually impaired (blind), the hearing-impaired, the orthopedically handicapped, the speech impaired, those with behavior problems, those with learning disabilities and those with special health problems and others have not received as much attention as it should have.

The progress of special education has been hampered by various complaints. Besides the lack of classrooms, physical facilities and special equipment suitable to the needs of CSN, the dearth of specially trained teachers and school administrators for the various exceptionalities has remained a perennial problem.

Parent education is also an urgent need in the campaign to enhance home-school relationships and to maximize their sense of competence and involvement in the education of their handicapped as well as their gifted children. Over the years, the Bureau of Elementary Education has worked for the improvement of the delivery system despite and against any constraints. These efforts can only be sustained if they are anchored on a legal mandate that fully supports and ensures the continuity of long-term programs to help develop the potential of handicapped and gifted persons. In this manner, self-reliance that has been wanting among the handicapped who are potential assets to themselves and to the country, could be developed.

With the advent of the worldwide movement of Education for All (EFA), adequate provision for the education of CSN will contribute to the achievement of its objectives which emphasizes the eradication of illiteracy, greater effectiveness of learning for all and the acquisition of basic skills, knowledge and attitudes to empower them for a better quality of life.

As an expression of our deep concern to this sector of our society and to give fuller meaning to the democratization of education towards their upliftment, this bill is recommended for immediate approval.
