HOUSE BILL NO. 2179

INTRODUCED BY REPRESENTATIVE ALFRED VARGAS

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The Benham Rise, was officially called the Philippine Rise by the Philippine government through an Executive Order No. 25, last May, 2017. It is a seismically active undersea region and extinct volcanic ridge located in the Philippine Sea approximately 250 km (160 mi) east of the northern coastline of the province of Isabela.

Under the Philippine Sea lie a number of basins including the West Philippine Sea Basin, inside of which is located the Central Basin Fault (CBF). The Benham Plateau is located in the CBF and its basement probably is a micro-continent. The Philippines claimed this feature as part of its continental shelf in a claim filed with the United Nations Commission on the Limits of the Continental Shelf on April 8, 2009, and which was approved under the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea (UNCLOS) in 2012.

It is designated as a "protected food supply exclusive zone" by the Philippine government in May 2017. Mining and oil exploration is banned in the Benham Plateau as a protected area.

Almost Six (6) years after UNCLOS awarded the ownership of this territory, the government has still to maximized its potential and assert its sovereign rights and jurisdiction pursuant to the relevant provisions of the 1987 Philippine Constitution, national legislation, the UNCLOS, and applicable international laws.

Philippine Rise remains largely unexplored, however. Potential benefits particularly to the country's energy and food security, the underwater geographic feature needs to be subjected to further scientific study. For the past years, scientists and marine researchers have discovered a vast and pristine coral reef ecosystem in Philippine Rise. There is a pressing need to scale up and sustain the scientific scrutiny and exploration of Philippine Rise. The extensive participation of several government agencies and other stakeholders will have to be coordinated meaningfully.

Hence, we propose that a Philippine Rise Exploration and Development Authority (PREDA), attached to the National Economic Development Authority (NEDA), as the lead agency in conducting scientific research and exploration in Philippine Rise should be created immediately. Once equipped with such information, the PREDA shall take the lead in formulating and implementing a development roadmap for Philippine Rise, ensuring that it is aligned with the country’s Philippine Development Plan. As such, swift passage of the foregoing measure is earnestly sought.
