The Philippines is one of the nations whose investment in the global market is labor force. Our Overseas Filipino Workers (OFWs) have been a consistent dollar earner for the country. In 2009 alone they have brought in at least $17.3 Billion in the local economy as reported by POEA- OES. This is equivalent to some 11-12% of the country's gross domestic product. The remittances made by the Overseas Filipino Workers have helped in stabilizing the economic situation of the country despite global recessions and economic downturn. In 2012, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (SSP) estimated official remittances coursed through banks at 5% over 2011 figures to US$21 billion. But official remittances are only a fraction of all remittances. Remittances including those sent through other means are estimated by the Asian Bankers Association to be 30 to 40% higher than the official BSP figure.

The rise of global employment and the acceptance of large-scale manpower among the various industries worldwide have opened an opportunity to our competitive skilled and non-skilled workers to reach their dream of having a successful career by seeking greener pastures abroad. The continuous increase of overseas workers have triggered the enactment of Executive Order 797, creating the Philippine Overseas Employment Administration (OWWA) to develop employment opportunities, ensure the protection of workers, and the promotion of industrial peace. In order to ensure the welfare of our Kababayans abroad, RA 8042, otherwise known as the Migrant Workers and Overseas Filipino Act of 1995, has been enacted to be able to uphold the dignity of our citizens and to protect their rights even outside the country. However, it cannot be denied, that various confusions have been experienced as to who among the agencies of the government should act on some queries of our Kababayans. Instead of giving them ease and comfort, problems have arisen in terms of their employment, insurance, benefits, and so on because of red tape and the ensuing confusion as to which agency has jurisdiction. To address this problem, and to make it better for our Kababayans working abroad, this Bill is being introduced to unify the diversified agencies in order for them to serve the greater good for the Filipinos overseas. This is consistent with the fundamental precept found under Section 3, Article XIII of the 1987 Constitution: "to afford full protection to labor, local and overseas, organized and unorganized, and promote full employment and equality of employment opportunities for all." These two agencies, POEA and OWWA, together with other allied Bureaus and Offices could become more effective channels of public service if they work under a single umbrella organization ensuring that there are no overlapping measures, functions and services. This bill features the establishment of a permanent fund, the OFW assistance fund, intended to guarantee support to all Filipinos working abroad in times of contingencies, including the payment of blood money if need be and the creation of programs to support the reintegration and well-being of our returning migrant heroes. As a sign of our gratitude, we have called this Overseas Filipino Workers (OFWs) as our "Modern Heroes."

Considering the significant value they bring in to the economy and the specialized problems they face abroad. It is only appropriate that a separate Department — the Department of Overseas Filipino Workers - be created to cater to the special needs of the OFWs. This umbrella organization will not only unify but also streamline the services for OFWs by having POEA and OWWA as attached agencies, together with Bureaus and allied Offices in order to adequately support and give assistance to the OFWs wherever they may be.

In view of the foregoing and bearing in mind the needs of our OFWs the enactment of this bill is earnestly sought.
