EIGHTEENTH CONGRESS
First Regular Session

House Bill No. 2484

Introduced by Representatives
ESTRELLITA B. SUANSING and HORACIO P. SUANSING, JR.

EXEMPLARY NOTE

Plastic carrier bags, including containers and utensils, and other products being used by food and market services have long been purported to be responsible for the clogging of canals, drainages, and waterways. These are deplored as injurious to marine life, and, in general, disruptive to the ecosystem.

However, practicality and scientific study claims will dictate that plastic products are not bereft of benefits, if not more environment-friendly than other products. In a tropical country like the Philippines, wherein wet and dry are the only seasons, plastic products have an advantage over paper or any other type of bags. Plastic bags are also a better choice when it comes to Life Cycle Assessment, which takes into consideration energy requirements, among other considerations, for its production, transportation, and up to its disposal.

The bill intends to include all plastic products, like cups, utensils, food containers, and the ubiquitous carrier bags that are given at the point of sale from wholesale or retail stores and other food service facilities.

This bill seeks to regulate the production, use, recycling and disposal of plastic products for basic services and provides a transition from ordinary petroleum-based plastic products to biodegradable plastic products for use in commercial and cluster of commercial establishments, wet markets, vendors, and all food establishments. Likewise, this bill also encourages reuse and recycling of plastic products as well as in-store recovery programs for commercial, food, and cluster of commercial and food establishments.

In view of the foregoing, approval of this bill is earnestly sought.
