EXPLANATORY NOTE

From 1971 to 1982, small and marginalized coconut farmers have been remitting coconut levy funds to the government. These funds were intended to support and advance the development of the coconut industry for the benefit of coconut farmers.

Various laws and issuances were signed to ensure that coconut levy funds were collected throughout the years. These include:

1) On June 19, 1971, Republic Act 6260, known as the "Coconut Investment Fund" (CIF) was implemented and authorized the collection from coconut farmers a sum equivalent to P0.55 on the first domestic sale for every 100kg of copra;

2) On August 20, 1973, P.D. 276 created the Coconut Consumers Stabilization Fund (CCSF) which imposed an additional of P15 for every 100kg sale of copra reseceda;

3) On November 14, 1974, the Coconut Industry Development Fund (CIDF) was established to finance the establishment, operation, and maintenance of hybrid coco seed farm and replanting program. The levy was made permanent; and

4) On October 2, 1981, PD 1841 (the Coconut Industry Stabilization Fund) revised levies and imposed the amount of P50 for every 100kg of copra reseceda and later was raised to P100 per 100kg of copra.

As a testament to the effectivity of collections during the first decade of its implementation, through the blood and sweat of the coconut farmers, the levy accumulated the amount of P9.625 billion.

After the EDSA Revolution of 1986, the administration of the late former President Corazon Aquino, through the Presidential Commission on Good Government, sequestered all assets acquired by Marcos and his cronies including the coco levy funds. But despite the huge amount of existing coconut levy funds, the genuine stakeholders – the small and marginalized coconut farmers, remain underprivileged and the coconut industry remains stagnant and dragged down.

It is estimated that the coco levy funds, inclusive of earnings, interests and other increments, have grown to some P200 billion according to a July 11, 2013 report of the Philippine Daily Inquirer.

It was a great moment when after almost four decades, the highest court of the land affirmed that the funds were indeed owned by the small coconut farmers and should be treated as public funds.

On January 24, 2012, the Supreme Court declared the CLIF block of shares as having been purchased by means of the coconut levy funds and therefore should be treated as public funds.

Executive Orders 312 and 313 of former President Estrada, which sought to privatize shares in San Miguel Corporation that were bought with coco levy funds, were junked by the Supreme Court in April 2012.

The series of promulgations of the Supreme Court in September and November 2012 declared that the Cojuangco’s claims to the UCPB and SMC stocks that were bought with the coco levy funds are public funds. On October 5, 2012, San Miguel Corporation formally paid the government, through the PCGG, the sum of almost P58 billion for the preferred shares it bought.

In the most recent ruling of the Supreme Court dated July 9, 2013, the high court upheld its decision that shares in the UCPB of Cojuangco were owned by the government. The coconut levy funds should be used for the benefit of the small and marginalized coconut farmers and farm workers.

The abovementioned decisions by the courts regarding the coco levy funds affirm the need to return these funds to their rightful owners. It is ironic that coconut, popularly dubbed as the “tree of life,” has been the source of so much bitterness and hardship for our small and marginalized farmers.

This bill seeks to address the decades-long struggle of coconut farmers by enacting a genuine law on the use of the coconut levy funds. It is meant to provide a mechanism to protect the rights, welfare and interest of the small and marginalized coconut farmers and farm workers.

In view of the forgoing, the passage of this bill is earnestly sought.
