EXPLANATORY NOTE

The problem of lack of security of tenure or “endo” of workers in the private sector which President Rodrigo Roa Duterte has promised to end is also a problem of the public sector workers. In fact, the private sector employers have repeatedly raised the existence of “double standards” and “unfairness” with the Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE) enforcing compliance with Constitutional guarantees on security of tenure and right to self-organization while national government agencies (NGAs) including DOLE, local government units (LGUs), state universities and colleges (SUCs), government owned and controlled corporations (GOCCs), government financial institutions (GFIs), Congress, judiciary and the Constitutional bodies are not complying on the pretext that by law, there are only two (2) ways of becoming a public employee — by appointment or by election. Hence, hired personnel in government service are not government employees and has no security of tenure. They are workers in the government but with no employer. Their job contracts have stipulation providing the absence of employer-employee relationship with the office that hires, pays their wages, disciplines and exercises control on the manner and method of carrying out their work.

The non-employees in the government service are the 660,390 job orders (JOs), contract of service (COS), or Memorandum Order or Understanding (MOU) personnel as indicated in the 2017 CSC Inventory of Government Human Resources (IGHR). This is an increase of 65,228 personnel from 595,162 in 2016. Their contract provides that there is no employer-employee relationship with the agency/office that hired them despite repeated hiring or working in the agency/office for five (5) years or more.

In the 2017 IGHR, the bulk of the 660,390 JOs/COS can be found in the Local Government Units (LGUs) with 463,551 personnel, the National Government Agencies (NGAs) comes second with 120,273, Government-Owned and Controlled Corporations (GOCCs), State Universities and Colleges (SUCs), and the Local Water Districts (LWDS) have 36,249; 31,639; and 8,678 JOs/COS personnel, respectively. The 2017 IGHR also indicated 96,456 casual and 39,578 contractual employees. In sum, almost a million public sector employees or 796,424 to be exact are in insecure work arrangements in various sectors of the government.

Contractualization in the government is a serious problem. This affects the quality of public service, proliferation of political patronage system and corruption. But the CSC-DBM-COA Joint Circular No. 1, Series of 2017, offered solutions are proven problems in the private sector. Individual contracting as the work arrangement until 2020 does not address the vulnerability of the employees, exploitations and the lack of security of tenure neither would the use of contractors/agency supplied workers.

It is incumbent upon the Government to be the model in promoting decent work and job security. Social justice must be observed by the Government as an employer and the Constitutional guarantee on security of tenure, full protection and full employment sacrosanct.

In view of the foregoing, the passage of this Bill is earnestly sought.
