Along with the news about the unfortunate "deadly attack" near a military camp in Sulu this month\(^1\) came news about the cause of the incident—two suicide bombers, one of which is a Filipino, was confirmed by authorities\(^2\). This is the first time our country has dealt with a confirmed Filipino suicide bomber. The bombing incident marks a worrying escalation of militancy driven by the influence of the Islamic State group in the country\(^3\). Although claims by the ISIS to the bombing is still up for validation, insurgency in the southern Philippines has already been a problem for decades.

This recent act of terrorism reiterated the calls by Philippine security forces to amend provisions of the Human Security Act. Republic Act No. 9372, or the Human Security Act of 2007, is one of the primary anti-terrorism law aimed at tackling militants in the country. Amending this law would help strengthen the government’s fight against terrorism, especially amid the recent incidents, and improve security in the country.

This representation proposes this bill as an answer to the call of a stronger security against terrorism in the country by amending the Human Security Act. The main innovation of this proposal is the definition of Terrorist Acts under SECTION 4 of the Bill which states that:

\(^1\) https://www.abs-cbn.com/news/06/28/19/3-soldiers-killed-9-wounded-in-sulu-blast any person who commits any of the following unlawful acts, regardless of its stage of execution, when the purpose of such act, by its nature and context, is to intimidate, put in fear, force or induce the government or any international organization, or the public to do or to abstain from doing any act, or seriously destabilize or destroy the fundamental political, economic or social structures of the country, or create a public emergency or undermine public safety.

Other salient features of the Bill are as follows:

a. Recruitment and membership in a terrorist group is now a punishable act, along with providing material support to terrorists;

b. Longer period of judicial authorization for surveillance to give the law enforcers more time to effectively gather evidence;

c. Enforces a new provision defining Foreign Terrorist Fighters to prevent them coming to the Philippines to commit terrorist acts here or use the Philippines as a pit stop to their journey abroad;

d. Adds Regional Trial Court as a venue for securing judicial authorization for surveillance;

e. Adds a provision on the preliminary order for proscription of terrorist organizations;

f. Includes the Secretaries of the Department of Labor and Employment, Department of Information and Communications Technology, Department of Science and Technology, Department of Transportation, Department of Education, and Department of Social Welfare and Development in the composition of the Anti-Terrorism Council; and

g. Increases the functions of the Anti-Terrorism Council to include monitoring the progress of investigations and prosecution of all persons accused and/or detained for the crimes defined under this Act in order to prevent abuse and ensure proper conduct of investigations.

While an anti-terror law in itself cannot completely eradicate the problem of terrorism, an intensified one can give the government and the law enforcement agencies the much-needed tool in dealing with the emerging threats of terrorism. The proposed bill would help add teeth to the current anti-terrorism law.

This bill aims to give the government an effective legal framework that would enable it to have a criminal justice response to terrorism. As a counterpart bill to Senator Ping Lacson’s version in the Senate, this representation hopes that this bill is prioritized as a national security legislation that is due its passage.

The approval of this bill is earnestly sought.

LUIS RAYMUNDO "RAY" F. VILLAFUERTE, JR.
