EXPLANATORY NOTE

The Philippines, along with some islands and states, sits within the Pacific Ocean where both the Pacific Ring of Fire and the Typhoon Belt are located. The Ring of Fire is a 25,000-mile range that contains 75% of the world’s active volcanoes and serves as the converging point of the world’s tectonic plates. As a result, 90% of Earth’s earthquakes occur along its path, including the planet’s most violent and dramatic seismic events.\(^1\) The Belt, also known as Typhoon Alley, produces around 80 tropical depressions annually. Twenty of these enter the Philippines and almost half make landfalls\(^2\), raining down destruction and wreaking havoc along its path. We are also heavily affected by El Niño, a natural phenomenon where the ocean gets warmer and bringing extended dry spells to our lands. When this occurs, it is only a matter of time before strong typhoons smash into our country, causing billions of pesos in damages and much worse, thousands of deaths among many of our fellow countrymen.\(^3\) In 2009, we suffered El Niño and of September that year, Typhoon Ketsana, locally known as Ondoy, hit the country, affecting 993, 227 families and placing the whole Metro Manila and 30% of our provinces under the state of calamity.

These are some serious and detrimental risks that need to be addressed with a more comprehensive and more cohesive steps of action to ensure the safety of our people, especially those residing at high-risk areas. The objective of this bill is to create a consolidated department that has the authority and capability to counter such threats posed by natural disasters by providing a highly coordinated programs and/or standard operating procedures. In addition, this Department is designed with the aim of decreasing, if not totally stopping, the casualties brought about by such calamities.

As Filipinos, we are known for our outstanding resiliency in the face of adversity. We have endured an inexhaustible number of disasters—from devastating earthquakes, catastrophic volcanic eruptions to deadly typhoons. We have outlasted them all since time immemorial but be that as it may, our natural resiliency is not an excuse to let things be and allow more Filipinos to suffer when we could give them the chance not to. The government, as the guardians of this nation, bears the ultimate responsibility to better prepare, if not fully protect the state in the form of calamities—both natural and man-made.

It is for the aforementioned reasons that the urgent passage of this bill is immediately sought.
