The use of a cellular phone is vital for communication, business, research and other activities that are advantageous for our people. The continuing advancement of technology in wireless communication has rendered everyday living and business transactions more convenient, effective and efficient. wherein

While having the advantages of modern communication, there are likewise disadvantages. It is a given fact that there are several instances wherein mobile communication devices are used to commit misdeeds, often victimizing unsuspecting persons. This is primarily due to easy access to prepaid Subscriber Identity Module (SIM) cards which can be bought anytime and anywhere. It should be kept in mind that the Batasan bombing that happened on November 2013, a mobile phone was used to detonate the bomb placed near the South Wing lobby of the House of Representatives. Further, there have been many cases in which the use of prepaid SIM cards were abused and used to commit crimes like scamming, death threats to a person, and even drug transactions like what happened in Bilibid, which Congress have investigated. Even the so-called “dugo-dugo” gangs have taken benefit of such technology, victimizing people for their financial gains. Furthermore, during the Marawi siege in May 2017, terrorists could be seen on live television using mobile phones to coordinate their actions and spread terror to our people.

It is therefore imperative that a law regulating the use of SIM cards be enacted for the benefit of our people and for our national security. This bill seeks to require the registration of a person purchasing a prepaid SIM card by requiring them to fill up a registration form and present government issued identification to show proof of their personal information. Through this measure, it is hoped that SIM card registration will become a deterrent to any wrongdoings relating to its use, including the fast-tracking the resolutions of crimes involving the utilization of the same.

Immediate passage of this bill is earnestly sought.
