Section 1, Article XI of the 1987 Constitution provides that public office is a public trust. Public officers and employees must at all times be accountable to the people, serve them with utmost responsibility, integrity, loyalty, and efficiency, act with patriotism and justice, and lead modest lives. Although these precepts are laudable, the pervasiveness of graft and corruption remains a reality in Philippine society.

The Office of the Ombudsman is tasked to investigate on its own or on complaint by any person, any act or omission of any public official, employee, office or agency, when such act or omission appears to be illegal, unjust, improper, or inefficient. Though zealous, the men and women of the Office of the Ombudsman, themselves government officials and employees, are not spared from challenges brought about by numerous harassment suits filed against them by disgruntled litigants. Moreover, their personal safety and the safety of their family are at constant risk due to the high-profile cases they are handling.

Furthermore, despite the enormity of their task of battling graft and corruption, the salary of Ombudsman employees is still not comparable to that of their counterparts in other government agencies and in other anti-graft and corruption bodies in the Asia-Pacific Region.

With the enactment of this bill into law, it is believed that the enhancement of the welfare of the country’s graftbusters will strengthen the Office of the Ombudsman as an institution in its fight against graft and corruption.

Considering all the foregoing, approval of this bill is earnestly sought.
