House Bill No. 4794

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The State espouses the advancement of a healthy population. Article XVIII, Section 11 of the 1987 Philippine Constitution asserts that, “the State shall adopt an integrated and comprehensive approach to health development which shall endeavor to make essential goods, health and other social service available to all the people at affordable cost. There shall be priority for the needs of the under-privileged, sick, elderly, disabled, women, and children.”

This measure is crafted to mandate the local government units (LGUs) to apportion a fraction of their Internal Revenue Allotment for the procurement and distribution of free medicines to indigent patients in their jurisdictions. This is a poverty alleviation program to increase access of the people to unrestricted distribution of medicines. This is to provide assistance to indigent patients so that they can immediately avail of needed medicines. Truly, the public should be accorded the right to adequate healthcare as provided for by the Constitution, with the goal of improving the overall health and well-being of the people, especially those in need.

According to some studies, medicines are generally expensive in the Philippines. Medicines in the Philippines are 5 to 30 times more expensive than those in other parts of Asia. In public facilities and community-based outlets where generic drugs are more widely available, and could be accessed free or at lower-prices by the poor, inadequate and irregular supplies limit access to medicines. Despite some serious efforts, generic drugs have made little headway in the country since the Generics Act of 1988 was passed. Other efforts to improve procurement and distribution of drugs at the community level, such as the Botika sa Barangay, have been attempted, but these are largely small-scale and unsustainable in the long run. Thus, patients with serious illnesses that require prescription medicines may be unable to purchase and take medicines. To address the problem of equity and poverty, the LGUs need to adopt a program that meets the basic needs of the marginalized sector such as easy access to quality medicines.

Better health outcome of the poor would contribute to wider poverty reduction, would enable more of the poor to participate in and benefit from economic growth, and would address a major source of dissatisfaction among the poor, thereby contributing to greater social stability in the country.

In view of the import of this measure, its immediate passage into law is earnestly sought.
