
EXPLANATORY NOTE

Throughout the years, the country has experienced judiciary officials being murdered, assassinated, and brutally killed by criminals in the hopes of obstructing the ends of justice.

The Amnesty International reported that from 1999 to 2012, some 22 judges have been murdered or assassinated in the Philippines and this translates to two judges being killed annually. As stipulated in Section 2 of the Republic Act 9946, as amended, states that "when a justice or judge is killed intentionally while in service, the presumption is that the death is work-related."

The risk alongside the job of these judiciary officials should be counterbalanced by providing them with a grant that will encourage them to fully perform their duties and responsibilities. Hence, this bill seeks to support the judiciary by granting benefits to their surviving heirs in case they are killed while dispensing justice.

Upon its approval, this bill will embolden our judges and justices, especially the young idealistic judges and justices, to dispense justice without fear knowing that the government has their back and will support them, and their family, as they uphold the rule of law.
