EIGHTEENTH CONGRESS
First Regular Session

HOUSE BILL NO. 579$*

 Introduced by REP. FRANCISCO “KIKO” B. BENITEZ, Ph.D.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Section 3 (2), Article XV of the 1987 Constitution mandates the State to defend the right of children to special protection from all forms of abuse and exploitation. Similarly, Art. 34 of the United Nations Convention of the Rights of the Child (CRC), whereof the Philippines is a state party, calls for state parties to protect the child from all forms of sexual exploitation and sexual abuse. The Philippines was also one of the first countries to sign Convention on the Elimination of all forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW) in 1980, and the first country in ASEAN to ratify it. These underscore the responsibility of the State as parens patriae to intervene against the abuse of any child or individual who needs protection.

However, the Philippines is failing in this obligation.

The Philippines has the lowest age of consent, at 12 years old, in Southeast Asia and the second lowest in the world¹. This is “too low” according to the CEDAW Committee, making children more vulnerable to sexual violence.

Data from the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) show that from 2015 to 2017, most of the victims of rape and child incest were between the ages of 14 to below 18 – 256 cases or 55 percent of total number of child rape cases. The 2015 National Baseline Study on Violence Against Children also found out that one in every five Filipino children aged 13 to below 18 have experienced sexual violence.

Noting that the low age of consent endangers children, the committees of CRC and CEDAW have already recommended to the Philippine Government to increase the age of sexual consent from 12 to 16 years old. Raising the age of sexual consent widens the shield of the law in protecting children against predators that exploit their vulnerability, and saves them from the profound trauma of sexual violence. It shows our commitment to safeguard the innocence of the youth, prevent lustful acts, and breathe life to Article II, Section 13 of the Constitution which recognizes the role of the youth in nation-building, and the State’s duty to promote and protect child’s physical, moral, spiritual, intellectual, and social well-being.

It is on these matters that the approval of the subject bill is respectfully sought.

REP. JOSE FRANCISCO “KIKO” B. BENITEZ

¹ The average age of sexual consent in the world is between 16 and 18 years old.
