EXPLANATORY NOTE

If we want to know how our future as a nation looks like, we just have to see how we treat our children, today.

Based on the National Baseline Study on Violence Against Children in the Philippines published by the Council for the Welfare of Children (CWC) and UNICEF Philippines, in 2018, about 17.1% of children 13-18 years old experienced sexual violence while growing up. The report pointed out that 3.2% of our children and youth experienced forced consummated sex during childhood. The highest prevalence of sexual violence happens in homes, followed by sexual violence in the community, workplace and schools, with a high percentage of males as victims. To give us a clear idea of how alarming the situation is, 1 woman or child is being raped every 62 minutes in our country. The Center for Women Resources reported that, of these victims, 70% are children. It is important to note that these studies do not included cases that were not reported to the police or authorities.

The Philippines have passed several laws that protect women and children. However, the problem of rape and sexual violence persist. A child is sexually abused by the minute. It is important that legal loopholes must be identified and plugged.

We have the lowest age of sexual consent in Asia and in the world. The global mean age of sexual consent is 16. Under Philippine law, statutory rape is committed when the offended party is under 12 years old or is demented. This allows rapists and sexual abusers to get away with their crime and continue to victimize our children.

To plug this loophole, send a strong signal to would be abusers and predators, and protect our vulnerable children, this representation seeks to increase the age for determining statutory rape to below 18 years old.

In view of the foregoing, the passage of this Bill is earnestly, sought.
