HOUSE BILL NO. 6405

Introduced by Honorable Mark O. Go

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Article XIV, Section 7 of the 1987 Constitution provides,

"SECTION 7. For purposes of communication and instruction, the official languages of the Philippines are Filipino and, until otherwise provided by law, English.

The regional languages are the auxiliary official languages in the regions and shall serve as auxiliary media of instruction therein.

Spanish and Arabic shall be promoted on a voluntary and optional basis."

This bill proposes the abrogation of the mandatory use of regional languages as the primary media of instruction in Kindergarten to Grade three, and to relegate said languages as auxiliary media of instruction as provided for by the Constitution.

In 2013, the use of regional and native languages as the medium of instruction for students in the Kindergarten until Grade 3 was institutionalized with the passing of RA No. 10533. The said law further provides for a transition program wherein Filipino and English shall be gradually introduced to prepare students in Grades 4 to 6 for secondary education where these are the primary languages of instruction. While the intentions of the law to develop the country’s regional languages and make education more accessible and learner-oriented are noble, the Philippine educational system is confronted with several realities that make the current use of the mother tongue as medium of instruction counterproductive.

According to a recent study from the University of the Philippines – Baguio, teachers are confronted with three possible scenarios in the use of the mother tongue. The first is when majority of the students communicate in the regional mother tongue, which is more common in rural areas. The second is when the teacher uses the regional lingua franca but the students use different mother tongues. The third scenario is when the students’ linguistic profiles show that they are more competent with Filipino or English as when either of these two are used at home instead of the regional lingua franca.
As validated by the Komisyon sa Wikang Filipino, there are approximately 130 Philippine languages used all over the country. Many of these languages are further diversified into many different dialects. Apart from the Ortograpiyang Pambansa, the country has yet to completely develop the orthographies of even the major regional languages of the Philippines. The country has proceeded to implement the use of the mother tongue as medium of instruction when our education system is not equipped with sufficient teacher training, textbooks, and other instructional materials to support mother tongue-based multilingual education. The mobility of people and local economic development created many cosmopolitan areas across the country where the local population is now composed of people from different ethno-linguistic backgrounds, and the mandatory use of the regional language instead of the widely understood Filipino or English has become difficult for teachers and learners alike. While it is recognized that the development of regional languages is essential in cultivating the national identity, such can be achieved without impose upon learners and teachers the use of a regional language they are not proficient in.

On the other hand, a 2000 survey by the Social Weather Station showed that 85% of Filipinos nationwide understand Filipino. Meanwhile, the last survey conducted by SWS on English proficiency was in 2008, which revealed that 76% of Filipinos understand English. In this day of interconnectivity and access to technology, the proficiency of Filipinos nationwide on the use of Filipino and English has significantly improved. These two languages remain to be the most widely used in commerce and mass media. Furthermore, there are readily available instructional materials in Filipino and English, which learners and teachers can use.

The formative years of the students from kindergarten to Grade 3 are crucial in preparing them for personal and academic development. Ultimately it is the development of the learners that would suffer when we impose the mandatory use of the mother tongue when the teachers themselves are not equipped to teach using the mother tongue, and the learners are more competent with using Filipino or English.

Hence, approval of this bill is earnestly requested.
