AN ACT
INSTITUTING THE MAGNA CARTA OF FILIPINO SEAFARERS

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The Filipino seafarers have long been the crew of choice in the world for their skills, resourcefulness, reliability, and command of the English language. At any given time, more than 400,000 Filipino seafarers man the oceangoing ships, allowing big shipowners to amass super profits from the toil and sacrifice of the seafarers. Exposed to the perils at sea, laboring in the heat of day and in the cold of night, the Filipino seafarers are one of the most exploited and oppressed.

Many of them are on board ships flying flags of convenience, substandard and unsafe ships, and are suffering from the stress and fatigue of work at wages that are below the ILO standard. Filipino seafarers suffer from the lack of security of tenure and the difficulty of being reemployed after finishing a contract. They also complain about the very high expenses for training and certification, upgrading certificates, and government exactions. When they are hired they are exposed to the elements, to stress and fatigue. This includes viral epidemics and piracies, aside from the natural perils at sea. When they sustain injuries, illnesses or if they die, the seafarers or their families have the burden of proof to establish that the incident is work related or they get no compensation. The POEA Contract that should have protected them is unfairly restricting their rights and benefits with this work related requirement.

When the Philippines ratified the ILO Maritime Labour Convention 2006, a glimmer of hope was seen in the horizon. Now, there is a set of laws and standards worldwide that would benefit and protect the rights of seafarers including Filipinos on board oceangoing and domestic ships. It was ratified by the Philippines on August 20, 2012 and became an International Law a year after. Yet, there is still no law passed in our jurisdiction to implement the beneficial provisions of this international treaty. That is why, it is very urgent to pass this Magna Carta of Filipino Seafarers to serve as the initial implementing legislation for the MLC 2006. It is an immediate intervention to address the problems and issues diminishing the rights and welfare of the Filipino seafarers, our modern day heroes.

In this light, the urgent approval of this bill is earnestly sought.
Approved.
