EXPLANATORY NOTE

The teaching profession is considered to be the mother of all occupations. Teachers play a vital role in nation-building and development by ensuring that their students become responsible and productive citizens of the nation.

Every year, we often hear proposals from several legislators to increase the salary of public school teachers. This these proposals generally gain popularity and sympathy towards public school teachers comparing them to other government employees receiving higher salaries.

The current starting salary of a public school teacher is at Php 19,000++ per month, but may total to Php 23,000 ++ when allowances and benefits are included. With the current starting salary of a teacher in the public school system, the salary of the teacher in the private schools pales in comparison, which on the average across the regions pays only around Php 13,000++ per month. Like in any other private employer, salaries in the private schools are regionalized subject to minimum wage set by appropriate regional wage boards. Whereas, in the public schools, the salaries of teachers are the same across all regions in the country.

This is the reason why private school teachers leaving abruptly to transfer to the public school system for economic reasons is rampant and has been a perennial problem in the private schools. With plans to raise salaries of public school teachers, private educational institutions now fear massive migration or exodus of private school teachers into the public school system, which eventually would likely close many private schools.

While it is understandable to incentivize teaching in the public schools, the government should also look into the welfare of the teachers in private schools. Licensed teachers, whether they are in the public or private school system, are performing a public function which is to deliver education for the Filipino youth through the schools.

Likewise, it also the duty of the state to recognize and operationalize complementary roles of public and private education basic institutions in the educational system and the invaluable contribution that the private educational institutions have made and will make to education.

In this regard, this bill seeks to provide a level playing field for professional teachers in both public and private basic educational institutions by including the salaries of licensed teachers in the private basic education institutions in the DepEd annual budget, subject to the same position classification and compensation scheme by the DBM. Consequently, this measure would also encourage more persons to join the teaching profession.

On behalf of the people of Parañaque City's Second District, and for the common good of the Filipino people, the approval of the said measure is earnestly sought.

REP. JOY MYRA S. TAMBU宁
2nd District, Parañaque City
