EIGHTEENTH CONGRESS
First Regular Session

House Bill No. 1916

Introduced by REPRESENTATIVE ERIC L. OLIVAREZ

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Under our present Social Security Law, it is the policy of the state to establish, develop, provide, and perfect a sound and viable tax exempt social service suitable to the needs of the people throughout the country which shall provide to cover employees and their families protection against the hazards of disability, sickness, old age, and death with a view to promoting their well-being in the spirit of social justice.

While the declared policy of the state in establishing the Social Security System (SSS) is indeed laudable and ideal, the sad reality is that disability or sickness by relying solely on the retirement, disability and sickness benefits and pensions due him from the Social Security System.

The Social Security System must therefore devise a means to increase the benefits that should accrue to its members. The system is in a very stable financial position and can very well afford to increase the benefits of its members. For instance, for the year 2011, the actual collections of SSS member contributions totaling P85.971 billion and yet it only paid in benefits a total of P82.760 million only. In the process it added another P314.673 million to Reserves. These figures demonstrate that the SSS can and should increase the benefits to its members is therefore imperative and urgent.

The ideal would be to readjust upwards the monthly pension, retirement and disability benefits. This however, will require extensive actuarial studies and revisions. In view, however, of the urgency of the need to increase the benefits to SSS members, this bill proposes to further amend the Social Security System to declare dividends in such amounts as may be approved by the system to put the SSS members on equal footing with those of the Government Service Insurance System (GSIS) who have been regularly receiving dividends.

Considering the merits of this proposal, the support of my colleagues in this chamber is earnestly requested.
